A thought from the Vicar – New Year, New Me?

A reflection on change . . .

A man sits alone in a bar. It is late on January the 2nd. It's almost January the 3rd. He turns round and says to no-one in particular: "It's not my fault you know. I couldn't help it. You see it's all in the genes. We're pre-programmed. Like a computer chip. The moment you pop into the world that's it. Clever or stupid. Fat or thin. Artistic, sporty or just plain lazy. Nothing you can do about. You might as well try and change the colour of your hair. You can dye it red but deep down it's still mousy. You can't change. I couldn't help it. "She came up to me and said she'd take me back if I apologised and promised never to do it again. I tried to explain that there was nothing to apologise for. It's not my fault. I'm just not made to be ... whatsit monotonous? no monogamous, that's it. Anyway I tried to explain in a caring and loving way that I had nothing to apologise for and she threw my drink over me. I don't blame her. It's in her genes. "The sad thing is I miss her. I guess that's in my genes too. It's like we're being punished for something that's not our fault. I mean it isn't as if I meant anything by it. It was just one of those things. Not my fault. I can't change. Can I?"

Modern culture seems fascinated by changing. At New Year we traditionally make the effort to change. A new year. A new beginning. A new me.

Self-help books and courses abound. "Let me be your guru in helping you be slimmer/cleverer/more desirable, etc...." they cry out. But despite the adverts on TV they seem to change so little. A new year but still the same old people. At New Year we make a resolution. On January the second we break it. Whether the wisdom is ancient or modern it changes little. We want to change. But can we change?

Actually, we are always changing. It is harder to stand still than it is to change. If we consciously try to stay the same, then we have changed because we become less open etc... For us there has been a lot of change. A new house, new friends and a new church. For Christ Church there has been change too. New ideas from the odd new vicar. New ways of doing things. Sometimes change isn't about new things but about rediscovering old ones.

Most of the change that the world offers is centred on the self. "Be slimmer and be happier". "Take charge of your life and be more successful". It is about . . .

New Year, New Me?

..... doing what it takes to make the self happier. God offers a different way. He says that this focus on the self is the problem. God calls it sin. God says that to change we must focus on him first and others as we focus on ourselves. Then we can change. He doesn't promise it will be easy. But he does promise to give us help. His Holy Spirit is a spirit of change. The type of change that turns the world upside down and leaves it the right way up for once.

What changes will this year bring? I don't know. Hopefully there will be times to pause and reflect on what has already happened, but I also hope and pray that we will not just look back but also look forward.

God Bless,

Chris

Crossway

Happy New Year to everyone – we pray that this year will be happy & healthy for you all!

Looking back to last November we had a wonderful 'eye – opener' when Steve Halliwell showed us the beautiful grounds of Gresham Hall with so many unusual shrubs and flowers – a place quite a few people decided they would like to visit – maybe this year.

The Committee have hopefully planned a very varied programme for you all this year – starting this month with one of our own parishioners – Bob Cuthbertson who's presentation has a fascinating title - "Bob - how do you fancy going to the Philippines ...?" As many of you may be aware Bob has spent a few years in the Philippines – so please come along and find out all about it – the date is Thursday 18th January at 7.30pm in The Church Hall. Everyone is so welcome. Just a reminder that yearly subs are due in January and they will be £12 for the year – or people can pay for individual monthly meetings at £2.50 on the door

HOPE Group

Wednesday 2nd January – no meeting

Wednesday 16th January – A time to laugh. If you've been on this planet for more than a few years, you know life isn't one big laugh. It's filled with difficult trials. Even so, the Bible declares there is "a time to laugh." We will explore ways of filling our lives with more laughter in 2019.

Hope group meets on the first and third Wednesdays of the month except for August. Everyone is welcome. Don't worry if you haven't been before or can't make it to every meeting. We enjoy fun and fellowship as well as taking opportunities for spiritual growth. Meet in the vestry at church at 7.20 for a 7.30 start finishing at 9pm. We look forward to seeing you. For further information see the website or email Elizabeth on eabailey@blueyonder.co.uk

'May the God of hope fill you with all joy and peace in believing, so that by the power of the Holy Spirit you may abound in hope' (Romans 15:13)

Our next Messy Church will be on Sunday 10th February, 2.30 – 4.30pm starting in the church. This is so close to Valentine's Day that we are going to have 'LOVE' as our theme and explore what Jesus meant when he said 'love your neighbour as yourself'.

We will have our usual fun games and activities and share our tea together. Further details next month, please just book the date!

Stewardship

In November the PCC set its budget for the coming year and it was not comfortable reading. We are going to have to look hard at ways to increase our income as well as looking at being prudent with our spending. At the end of January we will be looking in more detail at this in a Sermon series of Stewardship but here are some initial thoughts based around Paul's words in 2 Corinthians 9.

ONE: Why should I give?

Last Christmas I heard a debate on the radio about the rights and wrongs of re-gifting. That is taking an un-opened gift you have received and do not want and passing it on to someone else. In 2 Corinthians Paul reminds us of God's generosity to us and elsewhere in scripture we are reminded that all we have comes from God (I am of no doubt that this would have been in Paul's mind as he wrote this). When we give to God we are in essence re-gifting what . . . . .

Stewardship

. . . . . he has already given to us. We give in response to God's generosity to us.

Paul also then draws on two further personal reasons to give. He reminds the Corinthians of a pressing need in the church at the time (Christians in Jerusalem were in need) and that their giving was an expression of their discipleship in following God. How can we claim to follow God if we won't seek to help where there is a need and seek to give to the one we follow?

TWO: How should I give?

Having said this, Paul also reminds us that there are different ways people give. Some give grudgingly and others generously. Paul reminds us of God's goodness because he knows that God doesn't just look at what we put in the offering plate, but also at the heart of the giver. By remembering God's goodness to us we are able to give cheerfully and generously, trusting God to provide for us in the future.

THREE: What should I give?

Good Stewardship is not just about money. But does include money. The verses in 2 Corinthians 9, as well as giving deep principles in giving, are also very practical. Paul encourages us to look at what is needed and give appropriately. This involves our time and energy as well as our wallets. But in all cases it also involves sacrifice. The idea that our giving is an expression of our love for God and others (sacrifices were a love offering to God) and should cost the giver to show their worth. Sacrifices were both regular and spontaneous expressions of thanks. Our giving (in all its forms) should be regular and thoughtful with a place given to extra gifts in response to a particular need or to give thanks for a particular event.

At church we will hear of the need facing our church as we need to increase our giving and how we can do so by use of Gift Aid, regular giving through the envelope scheme or direct debits, as well as re-examining how much we can give. I hope you will join me in looking at how we use what God has given to us and deepen our following of him.

God Bless
Chris
